

Civil Service Success Supports Aspiring Police Officers By Preparing Them For Exams

People who want to join the New York Police Department can sign up for its preparatory civil service exams

Sayville, New York—To Be Dated: The requirements for joining police academies are getting stricter every year. As technology advances and crimes become more sophisticated, it's more important than ever to hire qualified police officers. Some police academies demand that applicants have a college degree, while others are content with 60 college credit hours. Although each police academy has its own criteria for entry, all of them require candidates to pass a civil service exam.

Civil Service Success offers preparation courses for people who want to work in various civil service sectors in New York. It offers training for the NYS Court Officer Exam, NYC Sanitation Exam, NYC Firefighter Exam, and Suffolk County Police Exam.

Preparation courses for the Suffolk County Police Exam consist of three sessions, each of which covers an integral portion of the exam, including cognitive abilities, problem-solving and reasoning, and critical thinking. During the prep courses, applicants will get the opportunity to familiarize themselves with the questions that usually get asked in the exams and learn how to answer them.

Aside from questions that assess candidates' skills, civil service exams also tap into their past work and life experiences—along with their personality traits—to evaluate whether or not they're a good fit for the jobs they wish to apply to.

“Civil Service Success believes in supporting communities by preparing aspiring civil servants for their exams. We want to ensure that candidates know what's coming and teach them how to answer questions in a way that impresses the examiner. Civil service exams heavily influence applicants' careers, which is why we ensure they get their money's worth by covering all the bases,” says a representative of Civil Service Success.

In addition to covering all portions of the Suffolk Police Exam, the institute also offers details of the hiring process, which includes a background investigation, psychological evaluation, physical ability test, and an oral interview.

“Our instructors are highly experienced and fully committed to helping applicants ace civil service exams. We allow them to practice with old exams so they know how to approach each section,” claims a spokesperson from the institute.

The company provides tutoring services all over New York including Suffolk County, Queens, Staten Island, Nassau, Brooklyn and Westchester County.
